This passage is about a husband's experience of shopping with his <sup>who is</sup> wife in choosing hats in a store. The choice of things to wear differs from person to person depending on one's life styles.

Other factors affecting the choice are fashion, convenience and economic condition. It is true that someone may judge people according to what he or she wears especially in large gatherings such as a meeting or party. Thus, a lot of people ~~are~~ dress up in those occasions in hoping to build up a decent image in the public. For example, if you dress in a careful way, you look neat and elegant, and you ~~are~~ <sup>feel</sup> most likely ~~feel~~ more confidence. The things <sup>you</sup> ~~to~~ wear also reflect one's way to <sup>are - - to feel</sup> communicate with others.

For example, ~~clothes~~ <sup>people</sup> are able to interact among persons, its particular environment and people to meet. Following fashion is great if it fits one's style and matches the place <sup>you go</sup> ~~to~~ go. As appearance is not about everything, convenience and economic considerations are also important factors in deciding things to wear.

This passage is about a garden competition. Gardening is a <sup>popular</sup> hobby <sup>esp</sup> for many people having a house. People usually plant different flowers to show their ~~different~~ preferences. Gardening is good for individuals as well as communities because this kind of hobby helps people relax, learn new things and build friendship. First, gardening as a hobby helps people relax and appreciate good things in nature, which <sup>is</sup> well worth the time spent. Next, gardening also pushes people to learn new things such as new knowledge about planting, flowers, and ways of arranging things in <sup>a way</sup> neat. Moreover, it is a kind of exercise <sup>is</sup> keeping people in good health especially for those who look at computers <sup>(kind of exercise)</sup> all day around. For example, garden

and participants must work hard regularly as a kind of physical exercise. In addition, gardening is <sup>Participates</sup> also a good way to communicate
