This passage is about parking at a wrong place and ways ^{the} of the police enforcement ^{of} of this traffic violation. Nowadays, there are so many cars on the streets and people have hard time ^a to find a parking place ⁱⁿ in a city. Most cities have traffic jam as there are increasing private cars. Thus, there are a few additional spaces available for parking. For their convenience, some people choose to park at no parking areas and this makes slow traffic worse.

^{places they can't park,} The Police have every right to give those cars tickets, as it is fair to punish the violations, but enforcement may only be a partial solution. There is a balance between ^{the} convenience of the individual car owners and the efficiency of whole transportation systems. Finding alternative ways to reduce traffic congestion is a priority for city management teams. First, city government should build more new parking lots in the city and at the same time, restrict private cars ^{from entering} ~~into~~ certain busy areas. Second, it is possible to influence ^{en} ~~the~~ the driving habits of private car owners by building large parking lots on the outskirts of a city and attract more people to use improved public transportation. Third, city planners should take traffic flows into consideration to decentralize some shopping places and entertainment facilities.
