This passage is about the Olympic Games, a sport competition gathering many kinds of sports, and people from many different countries take part. Every four years, a host city is chosen to hold the game.<sup>s</sup> Many people believe that this gathering can increase friendship between nations, promote the skills and the health of people. However, people have a lot of complaints about the games. Despite some experts claim that the Olympic games can promote <sup>the</sup> local economy, it actually wastes a lot of money. Many host cities are indebted after the games because many sport and transportation facilities have to be built for this kind of large gathering, but they are rarely used after the game. Moreover, athletes come for winning the prizes, and some spend years of training only for these opportunities. Now and then, there are bad practices such as use drugs and other kind of cheating, which are obviously against sport spirit to promote health. It is even harder to encourage friendships in this competitive environment. Despite the Olympic Games can update records of sports, I believe that from the point of view to improving the health of general public, the Olympic Games is not a best option. To be realistic, more decentralize local sport games <sup>would</sup> ~~can~~ be more helpful, and it can certainly enhance friendship between participants, and use less money as well.
