the SOS ~~message~~^{the} in this passage was stamped in snow by a woman, a plane crash survivor. Because the letters SOS is so distinct, it was rightly spotted by a pilot ^{who} flew ~~her~~ overhead. Shortly, the survivors were successfully rescued.

When one is in danger, it is very important to send a signal for help. Despite the fact that many have their mobile devices on hand, there are not always working in some ~~urg~~^{urgent} cases, especially in remote area where no mobile signal is available or ~~battery~~^{the} is dead.

In these situations, a simple and reliable way to send important messages become important, which can really save ~~life~~^{give} of people in danger. For many years, SOS had been a message for help sent by radio, flag or lamps from ship, airplane, and this ~~message~~^{signal} is still used today. It is commonly acknowledged that the letter SOS does not refer to any word in case of a danger. They were selected because they are easy to transmit in Morse code used in radio telegraph. However, 'save our souls' is one of its popular representation.
