This passage is about a famous clock, 'Big Ben' in London. Clock has been a device to measure time for centuries. The evolution of clocks have been from ~~mechanical~~ one to electronic and digital devices. However, big clocks in public places such as clock towers in the center of cities and railway stations are still used to tell those passing by the present time.

The clock is a great communicator between time and people because it connects us with ~~the~~ history of ~~past~~. Moreover, it ~~also~~ informs us immediately our present time at our homes and at workplaces. It ~~is also~~ a great tool to help people to better plan for their future ~~tasks~~.

People who ~~are much care~~ about time are more industrious and they are the groups enjoying a high level of civilization, because they are able to better control their ~~pace~~ of work and life. ~~First~~ the requirements to know ~~so many things~~ the exact time reflect one's increasing ~~pace~~ of life and the pressure of ~~their~~ urgency. For example, people of ~~the~~ pre-industry ~~time~~ were less care about time ~~creates~~, for the sunshine and sunset are enough to indicate passing of a day due to their slow paces of life and inefficient agriculture activities. Later with the development of our societies, the concept of time has changed a lot, people ~~care more~~ are ~~more care~~ about their own time and respect others ~~ones~~ because ~~time will~~ ~~more can~~ never come back again just as in saying 'time is money.' As no one want to interrupt or to be interrupted of ~~their~~ busy schedules, making appointment is ~~is~~ becoming a social convention in a civilized world. For example, people are no longer knocking others' doors to have a talk when they pass by the house of a friend. ~~at~~ = ~~casual~~

Even today, <sup>a</sup>mine is still a dangerous place by modern standards. The facts <sup>i</sup>are that miners risk their lives to dig deep into earth to get useful minerals such as coal, metals, diamonds or gold etc. Despite some mines have good safety measures and modern facilities, it still run the risks <sup>of being</sup> miners having trapped because these activities like cave exploration, there are too many unforeseeable <sup>dangers</sup> awaiting workers.

I think even if the mining industry has good profit, it still needs to be banned because the human life is ~~valueless~~ <sup>invaluable</sup>, those dead in accidents can not come back to life. Moreover mining destroys our environment as it brings pollutions to our water and air. Further, the possible rescue efforts cost a lot resources. For example, rescue teams must be mobilized and take immediate actions and at same time a lot equipment such as large machines, pumps, extra power which actually cost too much compared with mine sold.

People may argue that our industries will fail if we do not have these minerals and coal as raw materials for various industries and power supply. As a temporary solution, I think, more robots can be put into use in those risky spots, and measures should be taken to reduce environmental impact as well to ensure sustainable growth of our planet.

This passage is about a husband's experience of shopping with his wife in choosing hats in a store. The choice of things to wear differs from person to person depending on one's life styles.

Other factors affecting the choice are fashion, convenience and economic condition. It is true that someone may judge people according to what he or she wears especially in large gatherings such as a meeting or party. Thus, a lot of people ~~are~~ dress up in those occasions in hoping to build up a decent image in the public. For example, if you dress in a careful way, you look neat and elegant, and you ~~are~~ most likely ~~feel~~ more confidence. The things ~~to~~ wear also reflect one's way to communicate with others.

For example, ~~clothes~~ are able to interact among persons, its particular environment and people to meet. Following fashion is great if it fits one's style and matches the place ~~to~~ go. As appearance is not about everything, convenience and economic considerations are also important factors in deciding things to wear.

This passage is about musical instrument, a type of old piano.

~~Speaking~~ Talking about musical instruments like piano, guitar and violin, they are very popular among people. These instruments are used to create a variety of nice sounds. Music is a way of expressing one's emotions such as happiness, sadness, and quietness etc. Just people as learning a foreign language, it is something that people must learn spend time to study; however, it opens a door to a new world as it's worth time because music brings people a new channel to communicate with others.

Despite the musical instrument is a tool to create sounds, with the development of new technologies, computer is used in this area. People can use programs to manipulate sound effects, and by using programs it makes life of players easier. However, to experience the power of music, one should choose an instrument best fits your hands, because this is obviously a learning-by-doing process through hand movements. The more you play, the better you get the feeling of the rhythms. Like people learn a foreign language at earlier age, it is good to start practicing an instrument at teenage, however, it is never too old to learn.
